Every year , at the beginning of the holiday season, about 23,110 luminaries are lit . Each flame represents a soldier who was missing, wounded or killed during the Battle of Antietam in Sharpsburg, Maryland on September 17, 1862. This day is known as the bloodiest day of the Civil War.

“In the time that I am writing , every stalk of corn in the northern and greater part of the field was cut as closely as could have been done with a knife, and the slain lay in rows precisely as they had stood in their ranks a few moments before. It was never my fortune to witness a more bloody, dismal battlefield.”

“...this is the time that tries the souls of men. Standing inactive, conscious of unseen danger, with bullets whistling over and around them, the increasing rattle of musketry in front, with now and then the ominous shriek of a shell as it tears through the ranks, taking out perhaps a file of men....The strain upon the men is terrible. It takes more than brute courage to make him stand. There must be some higher, nobler feeling to prompt him or he will run in this moment of his great trial.”

“None of the bags are marked Union or Confederate. This memorial honors those who paid the last full measure of devotion, on the altar of freedom,” said Tom Riford, president and CEO of Hagerstown-Washington County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

“It is awe inspiring. You don’t realize what 23,000 lives are until you get a visual representation ,” said Tom Jones, acting chief ranger at Antietam National Battlefield.
